Adds Corporate Development and Commercialization Expertise to Board

SAN DIEGO, California — AnaptysBio, Inc., a biotechnology company developing first-in-class antibody product candidates focused on unmet medical needs in inflammation and immuno-oncology, today announced the appointment of James A. Schoeneck to its Board of Directors.

"We are thrilled to welcome Jim to AnaptysBio's Board of Directors," said Hamza Suria, President & CEO of AnaptysBio. "Jim brings a strong track-record in building biotechnology companies and commercialization of therapeutic products. His experience is highly relevant for AnaptysBio's strategic vision to advance our anti-IL-33 antibody program to multiple clinical proof-of-concept studies and develop our anti-IL-36 receptor antibody to market launch in orphan inflammatory conditions."

Mr. Schoeneck said, "I am pleased to join AnaptysBio's Board of Directors and work closely with the company's accomplished leadership team. AnaptysBio's antibody pipeline is at the forefront of new therapeutic opportunities in inflammation and immuno-oncology. The company's validated technology platform and product development capabilities provide us a unique opportunity to rapidly advance antibody product candidates for emerging biological targets."

Mr. Schoeneck is currently President & CEO of Depomed, a publicly traded specialty pharmaceutical company. Prior to joining Depomed in 2011, Mr. Schoeneck was CEO of BrainCells Inc., ActivX BioSciences and Prometheus Laboratories Inc. Prior to Prometheus, Mr. Schoeneck led the development of Centocor's commercial capabilities, including the market launch of Remicade®, which has become one of the most successful therapeutic antibodies in history. Earlier in his career, he spent 16 years at Rhone-Poulenc Rorer, Inc. (now Sanofi-Aventis) serving in various sales and marketing positions of increasing responsibility. Mr. Schoeneck holds a B.S. degree in Education from Jackson State University.
